2010 ICSC RESEARCH AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE

The ICSC Researcher Award was established in 2007 by the ICSC Research Department—at the request of its North American Research Task Force—to recognize researchers who have contributed their time, talents and efforts on various ICSC research initiatives.

This Award will be conferred on someone who has demonstrated a consistent and significant commitment and contribution to ICSC’s research programs. This would include, but not be limited to, writing (contributed articles to ICSC’s Research Review, for example), planning (involvement with program committees), speaking at ICSC Research events, advising (sharing knowledge through our research advisory groups) and those instrumental in fostering industry benchmarking through data sharing.

An ICSC Research committee composed of Chair of the North American Research Task Force, Vice Chair of the North American Research Task Force, Chair of the European Task Force, Vice Chair of the European Task Force, Chair of the Latin America Research Task Force, Vice Chair of the Latin America Research Task Force, Chair of the Asia-Pacific Research Task Force, Vice Chair of the Asia-Pacific Research Task Force will select a “researcher of the year” (there is no commitment to automatically select anyone in a given year) and present that annual award at ICSC’s Spring Convention in Las Vegas at the global research advisory group meeting or some suitable venue. All ICSC members in good standing may propose individuals along with the rationale why ICSC Research’s award committee should select the proposed person for the award.
